Finding company information

Orbis

Orbis is a database of company information. It has data from public and private companies all over the world. It only has data on the very largest companies (defined by turnover and number of employees). This means there is information on approximately 300,000 companies.

To access Orbis: login to the portal at http://portal.gre.ac.uk and then click on My Learning. You then need to click on Online databases and academic journals in Search the Library.

You will then get an A-Z list of links, find Orbis on this list and click:
You will then need to log in to Orbis via University of Greenwich – OpenAthens

You may also get a login page for the portal – please enter your username and password as usual.

You will see the old interface first. We recommend you use the new version.
You can search for a single company by typing in the name of the company in the search box.

These tools on the left can help you to create a customised report, analyse a peer group or explore the corporate structure of a company.

You can create a list of companies by using the search criteria here. Build up your search step-by-step by selecting different criteria.
